What are the kinds of C-SNPs created by carriers?

The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) allows Medicare Advantage Organizations (MAO) to offer three different kinds of C-SNPs.

The different types are:

A single approved condition wherein all members in the plan must be diagnosed with the eligible condition.

An MAO-defined grouping of multiple chronic conditions selected from the CMS-approved list wherein all members in the plan must be diagnosed with ALL of the eligible conditions. When and How to Talk with Clients About C-SNPs

CMS uses the same guidance around communicating about C-SNPs as it does for Medicare Advantage plans. This is different than the requirements around D-SNPs, which is stricter to protect consumers who may be in vulnerable health or financial situations.

Ways to find C-SNP clients:

- Review current clients' health assessment forms before or during an enrollment period. Let the client know if there are available C-SNPs that fit their condition.
- Work on business networking and offer to host educational events with providers who focus on certain chronic conditions.
- Ask current C-SNP clients for referrals.

What client communications about C-SNPs are allowed?

- When the client asks for information: If your client knows about C-SNPs and asks you about availability and eligibility, you can proceed.
- During AEP or the client's Initial Enrollment Period:

Clients first enrolling in Medicare or participating in the Annual Enrollment Period can be educated about qualifications for C-SNPs.

• At a dedicated client meeting: If you have scheduled a client meeting with an SOA that includes Medicare Advantage, you may discuss C-SNPs.

Always check with your compliance officer before starting any client outreach that may discuss specific plans or types of plans!

Now that you know some of the basics of C-SNPs, you can be ready to answer questions and serve your clients better!
